

Procedure coordination

Procedure vs 2 Phase Commit

- 2PC is a distributed transaction protocol that supports ACID semantics.
- After Commit is decided at the Coordinator the commit must recover and fail forward.
- Procedure has similar communications phases but does not support ACID semantics
- Does not recover on failures
- For now this is ok – if we fail anywhere the snapshot fails, and another can be taken without adversely affecting original table.

Procedure coordination

